Internet Policy
for
Sam T. Wilson Public Library

The Sam T. Wilson Public Library provides free access to the Internet in accordance with our mission to provide informational and educational material to the public in a variety of formats. Patrons wishing to access the internet via a Sam T. Wilson Public Library computer must have a Sam T. Wilson Public Library card in their name and they must present it prior to utilizing the computer. If he or she does not have his or her library card, then on one occasion they may present a driver’s license. Patrons’ fines must not exceed $10 for computer access. The Library does not monitor and has no control over the massive content of information available through the Internet. The quality of material available on the Internet varies widely in accuracy and content. Some may be offensive. Computers in the Sam T. Wilson Public Library should be adapted, filtered, and arranged in the library to discourage and prevent their use for the viewing of pornography to the fullest extent constitutionally permissible. After signing in to view the internet, the patron will sit at the lowest number computer available unless directed by the staff to seat elsewhere. The Library assumes no responsibility or liability for content on the Internet. Library patrons access the Internet at their own discretion.

In providing public access to the Internet, the Sam T. Wilson Public Library subscribes to the principles of intellectual freedom expressed in the American Library Associations’ LIBRARY BILL OF RIGHTS and FREEDOM TO READ statement and its interpretations of these documents. Information resources on the Internet may enhance those already held in the library and often go beyond what is locally available. The Internet is one of many information sources offered by the library. Information that is specific, accurate and current can also be found in the books, magazines, databases and from skilled staff.

As with other Library materials, the access of materials by children is the sole responsibility of parents or guardians. Parents and children are encouraged to learn more about child safety on the Internet, including the use of electronic mail and other forms of direct electronic communication. Library staff are not responsible for monitoring information accessed by children from the Internet, and the Library will not act in loco parentis nor assume functions of a parent’s or legal guardian’s authority with regard to the behavior of their children in the Library. Computers located in the designated children’s area do not provide access to the Internet.

All users of electronic information resources such as the Internet are expected to use these resources in a responsible manner, consistent with the educational and informational purposes for which they are provided. It is unacceptable to use the Library’s computer system and Internet resources for any of the following:

- For any purposes which violate applicable U.S., state, or local laws, regulations, or ordinances. Users must respect the copyright laws and licensing agreements pertaining to software, files and other resources obtained via the Internet.

- Using the Library’s online services for unlawful activities, including unauthorized online access or “hacking,” is prohibited.

- The unauthorized disclosure, use, and dissemination of personal identification information regarding minors is prohibited.

- Destruction of or damage to equipment, software, or data belonging to the Library.

Revised 09/2009
• Disruption or interference of network users or services. Such interference or disruption includes, but is not limited to: distribution of unsolicited advertising, harassment, libeling, or slandering of others; propagation of computer worms or viruses.

• Sending, receiving, or displaying text or graphics which may reasonably be construed as obscene by community standards.

• Loading one’s own software onto library computers.

The Library assumes no responsibility for damages, direct, or indirect, for the use of the Internet. This includes, but is not limited to, damage to personal or office computer equipment caused by virus-laden material downloaded from any Internet site. The Library is not responsible for damages to a user’s disk, or any loss of data. Users are encouraged to purchase and use a virus detection program on their home and office computers.

The Library is not responsible for any liability that may occur as the result of the disclosure of financial or personal information over the Library’s public computer services. Patrons should be aware that the use of public computers is not a secure medium and that third parties may be able to obtain information regarding patron’s activities.

The quality and performance of computers, printers, or software is not guaranteed.

All Internet resources accessible through the Library are provided equally to all library users subject to the Sam T. Wilson Public Library’s Patron Conduct Policy and subject to limitations of Internet resources based on library-installed software programs such as Public Web Browser to provide pop-up window blockers. Limitations to specific fee-based databases may be limited by contractual or licensing agreements. All locations accessible on the Internet are available without prior review by the library staff but subject to restriction as may be authorized by library policy and/or law.

The library discourages users from retrieving or displaying graphics or any content to include text that may be construed as obscene, graphically violent or offensive to other users passing workstations or printers. Users are urged to respect the sensibilities of others when accessing information that may reasonably be offensive to someone else. However, absolute privacy for users accessing electronic resources in the library cannot be guaranteed. There exists a possibility of inadvertent viewing by other users, either by watching the user’s screen, or because the user may leave the screen unattended.

The Sam T. Wilson Public Library does not support individual user e-mail accounts. Public web e-mail services may be accessed but no staff assistance is assured.

Virus protection is provided on Internet workstations but the library can not be held responsible for damage to personal data or equipment resulting from downloading or uploading on the Internet.

Internet commerce is available. Users are encouraged to make transactions only on sites which display security icons. The library cannot be held responsible or liable for any errors or problems experienced by users engaging in personal commerce transactions on a library workstation. No staff support will be provided for assistance with commerce transactions unless it is connected with a service for which the library has a specific contractual relationship.

All Sam T. Wilson Public Library computers are filtered. The library employs special technologies in an attempt to block access to obscene material, child pornography or content harmful to minors. Beyond this, the Sam T. Wilson Public Library does not monitor and has no control over the Internet, and cannot be held responsible for its content. Internet users are responsible for their own choices. If our filtering technology interferes with your research or other lawful use of the Internet, please see a librarian for assistance. For your protection, please close all applications and the Internet browser when you are ready to leave.

Revised 09/2009

Staff Assistance with Internet Access

In addition to assisting patrons with the online catalog, online databases, and the Internet, Library staff is frequently asked for assistance in using computer software such as word processing and other productivity software, or online services such as web-based e-mail. The Library attempts to meet this need for assistance in several ways:

- Limited direct assistance by staff
- Referrals to more detailed instructional manuals available for reference, or to check out from the Library
- Referrals to “help screens” or tutorials included in the computer programs themselves

The staff assistance that is available will vary according to the skill levels of individual staff members. Staff who is asked for assistance in opening an account with a web-based e-mail service should not recommend one service over another. Staff may help patrons locate a list of services using Internet search engines or other reference tools. Assistance in accessing or navigating the Web site of a chosen e-mail service may be offered as time permits, as it would be for any other Web site.

To support access for all patrons, the Library reserves the right to enforce time limits for computer use.

Headphones are permitted, but volume must be kept low to not disturb others.

Only two persons may share a single workstation.

Any problems with the functioning of the computers/printers should be reported.

Violations of the Guidelines

Patrons violating the Library’s guidelines will be advised of the Library’s policy for ethical use and asked to comply. Users who repeatedly violate the guidelines after previous warnings will be restricted from using the Library’s online services on that occasion. The Library reserves the right to prohibit violators from future access or use of the online services. Illegal acts may subject violators to prosecution by local, state, or federal authorities. Users may be liable for alterations or damage they cause to library hardware or software.

Users should be aware that Library staff may monitor use of the computers for the limited purpose of ensuring compliance with this Policy, and hereby consent to such monitoring.

Revised 09/2009