“CORRECTION CONNECTION”

NEW BEGINNINGS; OUR FIRST EDITION

This is the first edition of our Newsletter! There are many things that happen in a day within our department, and unfortunately, many of the accomplishments go unnoticed. There are success stories with the offenders and defendants with whom we work; there are also achievements with our staff members as well. So, I’d like to introduce you to our staff.

Tracey Jordan-Fotias is our Senior Probation Officer and began with us on September 1, 1999. Charles Ware is our Pretrial Investigator and commenced employment on January 15, 2002. Diana Cardelino is a Probation Officer who started here on July 15, 2006. Leigh Romero is a Pretrial Officer and began with us on December 15, 2007. Rachel Turner, Office Manager, was hired on June 1, 2009; and Justin Gigli, Pretrial Officer, began with us on February 1, 2010. Vernon Phelps, Probation Officer, started with us on September 1, 2010, and Lelei Narron, Office Associate, joined our department on August 1, 2011. Lauren Bingham, Probation Officer, is the last to come aboard with a start date of April 15, 2012. We truly have a dedicated, professional staff, that is a pleasure to work with! In each edition of the newsletter, a staff member or client will be featured so you can get to know what really happens each day in our department!
Our Agency has been engaged with the move towards evidence-based practices with DCJS. Transforming our daily practices is a holistic and strategic approach to managing change, working collaboratively with internal and external stakeholders, and using research and evidence to as your guide. Evidence-based policy and practice is focused on reducing offender risk and thereby reducing new crime and improving public safety. Several core principles stand out as proven risk reduction strategies. As these principles are put into practice, in order to create sustainable change, elements were identified that needed to be in place to create an evidence-based agency; organizational development, collaboration, and evidence-based practices. Our Agency was one of the twenty pilot sites that engaged in this initiative statewide for local probation. We have been preparing over the last two years for the organizational culture and climate changes. Staff are adapting very well with the change in our daily practices. We are fortunate to have staff members that possess the necessary skills and attitude to work with the EBP Initiative. So much that we have two staff members that are certified as ECMI Trainers, two staff members certified as M/OST Trainers, and two staff members that are trained as coaches for the Case Planning. Pretrial Staff are now entering the training specified by DCJS to improve the risk assessment process for pretrial recommendations and to introduce techniques to increase the success rates of supervision. Our purpose of carrying out the court ordered requirements and reporting client progress to the court does not change with the EBP Initiative; we just employ research-based techniques to work towards the rehabilitation of our clients by assisting with problems that may be related to the offending behavior. Coming to terms with this dual role is one of the greatest challenges in working with involuntary clients.

Health News & Tips

◊ Don’t assume healthy means low calorie which is what you need to pay attention to in order to lose weight and keep it off.

◊ Take the stairs instead of the elevator, park at the far end of the lot, and walk down the hall instead of emailing a co-worker. Everyone has heard these tips but did you know that six 5 minute walks a day translates into 10 pounds shed per year!

◊ Our bodies don’t sense calories from liquids well. Even drinks that sound innocuous– vitamin enriched water or fruit flavored iced tea– may be deceptively high in calories.

◊ Chronic tension alters hormones that increase your appetite and make you store fat.

◊ During stressful situations is when we are likely to turn to high carb– high calorie snacks . Instead, listen to your favorite music, go outside and take a walk, or concentrate on something you are grateful for.

RCJA will be starting a Life Skills group focusing on criminogenic needs of participants with materials/concepts taken from the Carey Guides and Thinking for a Change, as well as other sources. The course will be 12 weeks and primarily focus on anti-social cognition, temperament and companions. Modules will also include healthy interpersonal relationships, job seeking/keeping strategies, and substance abuse relapse prevention. The group will begin at the end of March and be free of charge to all participants.

Pretrial Officer, Charles Ware received certification from the National Association of Pretrial Services Agencies in July 2012, and is now one of thirty Certified Pretrial Practitioners in Virginia listed by NAPSA. Charles successfully completed a multi-hour examination of knowledge concerning legal and policy issues associated with bail practices. NAPSA has worked closely with the American Bar Association, and other organizations, to development performance standards and goals for pretrial release, in accordance with the Eighth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

Congratulations Charles!

POINTS TO PONDER...

Why do you have to “put your two cents in”... but it’s only a "penny for your thoughts"? Where’s that extra penny going to?

Why is it that people say they "slept like a baby" when babies wake up like every two hours?

Why do people pay to go up tall buildings and then put money in binoculars to look at things on the ground?

Education is what remains after one has forgotten what one has learned in school.

Albert Einstein

SOMETHING TO TAKE AWAY

There is the type of education we get in school, and there are life lessons we learn along the way. Both are important. The only problem is that life moves us along before we figure out what’s going on, and the wisdom we hope to have gained is sometimes late in coming. Much of the time we get stressed over "stuff" that in the grand scheme of things really doesn’t matter. When we allow ourselves get too caught up in it we ruin our perspective and don’t take time to enjoy the moment.

Life can be unpredictable and throw you some curves. Just say “never” and see what happens! To avoid the jolt when life’s surprises come your way, be prepared by being open-minded and maintain the positive mindset that welcomes the life lessons offered.

It’s important to be a person of honor. Your good word and deeds inspire trust and confidence from family, friends and employers. Be the kind of person others are proud to know. It’s wonderful to be self-confident and self-sufficient, however, it’s not all about you. There is nothing more monotonous than hearing someone talk about themselves and their accomplishments endlessly. Being self-centered is not the same as having self-confidence. Relationships are more important than any material goods you may acquire on the road to success. Without the love and support of family and friends in life, material goods are not of much use. Setting your values and priorities can help you establish what’s important.
